

Rougemont, NC -- TAG-OUT, Inc. of Durham has signed as sponsor of the Late Model Stock Car division at Orange County Speedway for the 2008 season.

The company is a manufacturer and distributor of a year-round mineral supplement for deer and other innovative products aimed at the outdoorsman.

“It’s the goal of every hunter to TAG OUT each year,” said company president Rodney Taylor, referring to a limited amount of deer hunting tags allotted during a season. “That’s what our name means. Use our products and you should TAG OUT.”

Taylor is a Hillsborough native who grew up attending stock car races at America’s fastest 3/8th mile track. He returns home after growing his company in the Atlanta area the past three years.

“It’s great to be home again and support the track I grew up with,” said Taylor. “The race fans, drivers and teams will really love our products. I know many of them love to hunt and spend time outside with their families.”

Orange County Speedway begins its third season under new ownership with a Test ‘N Tune session March 8. A 150-lap race for the TAG-OUT Late Models headlines the first event April 5.
